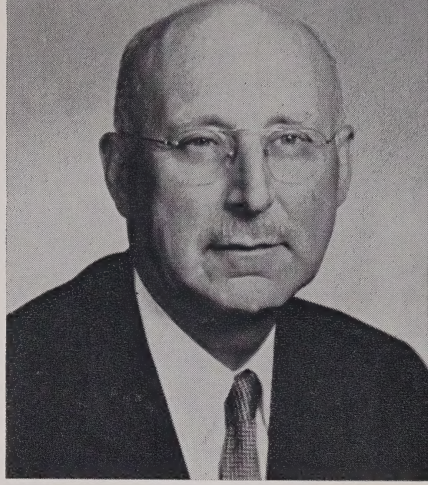
Report of the President



Rudolph H. Wyner

(Remarks made at the Beth Israel Hospital Annual Dinner, November 29, 1959)

During my first year, as President of the Beth Israel Hospital Association, I learned a great deal about the Hospital. I became better acquainted with its extensive programs of education for medical care, through its undergraduate medical programs, its post-graduate courses for doctors — both those who are studying to be specialists, and those who are already in practice, — its School of Nursing, its post-graduate program in dentistry, its programs in social work, dietetics and administration, and its technical training programs in radiology, physical therapy and laboratory.

I learned more of the major break-throughs that have been accomplished by the extensive research done at Beth Israel, and how important these programs of research and teaching are to good patient care, without which top performance in a Hospital is not possible.

It required intimate contact of the sort that I experienced during this past year to appreciate the extensiveness and importance of the work of our great institution.

I learned that Beth Israel is one of the select group of just a little more than 150 hospitals in this country that have these extensive facilities for patient care, teaching and research at this high level.

Beth Israel is a fully integrated member of the Harvard Medical Center which consists of this great Medical School and the associated teaching hospitals. This affiliation is of crucial value to the Beth Israel Hospital. In addition to this, we have well-established teaching affiliations with Tufts Medical School and, in ancillary fields, with Simmons College, Boston University and with the Harvard School of Public Health.

The Chiefs of Services who lead the large group of able full-time doctors and other scientists at Beth Israel are with us at the head table. Back of them stands a large and capable group of medical men and women who carry out our extensive and important programs of patient care for the needy, as well as for those able to pay. It is good to see many of the members of the medical staff here tonight as evidence of the partnership between the profession of medicine and the community — a partnership between a fine community and a fine staff.

One of the significant characteristics of our research activities is that almost every physician engaged in research also has clinical and patient care interests and responsibilities. This quite clearly improves the care of the patient. While the hospital houses these research activities, the direct expense of supporting them is almost completely borne by grants from the Federal government and other agencies. These grants, totalling over $700,000 during this past year, have come to us through, or directly from, the Harvard Medical School. This not only gives us the stimulus provided by the presence of research teams, but also makes available certain equipment and technical apparatus at an early stage of development.

However, I learned during this year that no Institution dealing with so many people can become complacent, and that we have to be on the alert, willing to receive constructive criticism, to recognize our deficiencies and to do our best to improve the service that we give our patients.

The most difficult segment of patient care everywhere these days is nursing. We are fortunate indeed that our Nursing Division is under the direction of Miss Dora E. Zolotin, who came to us early last September. She and the other two members of our nursing triumvirate, Miss Simons and Miss Bertozzi, have already done a great deal to improve the Nursing Service and they clearly show that they have the intention and ability to further this improvement.

Nor can we be complacent about the aspects of our activity other than patient care. Medicine is moving ahead with great strides. We must expand our efforts to make certain we hold the position we have earned, and then exert the additional effort that is necessary to go ahead.

As you know, Dr. Cecil Sheps, our General Director for over six years, has decided to return to academic life, and has accepted the Professorship of Medical and Hospital Administration at the University of Pittsburgh Graduate School of Public Health. He will go to his new position on March 1st, and we all wish him the best of success. A Selection Committee has been set up, chaired by Vice President Slotnik, and is presently looking for a successor to Dr. Sheps. Dr. Sidney Lee has been appointed Acting General Director of the Hospital and is showing great capacity and ability in carrying out his duties.

During the last fiscal year ending September 30th, Beth Israel Hospital spent approximately $5,500,000. Of this amount it received $4,200,000 from patients of all categories. There remained, therefore, $1,300,000 to be made up from other sources. The sum of approximately $1,230,000 was received from contributions, gifts, income from endowment funds, the Associated Jewish Philanthropies subvention, grants, etc. Nevertheless, the Hospital was still short $31,000 at the end of the fiscal year and its working capital was reduced by that amount. Since the cost of hospital service increased during the past year, and there is no indication that the national upward trend of costs will be curtailed in the foreseeable future, the Hospital is very much in need of funds to increase its endowments and all the help the community can give. I hope all of you join me in the knowledge of the importance of affirming and intensifying our joint efforts in behalf of the great community endeavor which our Hospital represents.

Report of the General Director

Cecil G. Sheps, M.D.

(Remarks made at the Beth Israel Hospital Annual Dinner Meeting, November 29, 1959)

This Hospital was conceived in the hearts and minds of hundreds of people, most of whom came to Boston from foreign lands after the turn of the century. It was born through the efforts of thousands who contributed their interests and support, first for the Hospital in Roxbury, and then for its transformation into the kind of community institution we now have. A Hospital is not built by constructing a building. It is built day by day – through its contribution to human welfare.

There are 5500 general hospitals in the United States. In the front ranks, there is a group, a bare 150, which qualify as major teaching hospitals. The Beth Israel is a recognized and respected member of this small group of institutions whose contribution to the community is symbolized, and indeed made possible, by its long standing, integrated programs of patient care, teaching and research.

The recognition, over 30 years ago, of the crucial importance of research and education in producing the highest level of performance, is what has given this hospital the enviable standing it has today in the world of medicine.

In spite of the prosperity of our country, we are rapidly coming to the end of a rather free and easy epoch. We are facing a new order of competition in which we recognize that we cannot afford to waste manpower. Greater effort is called for so that our people become as healthy, as productive, and as effective as possible. I accepted the invitation to join the full-time faculty of the University of Pittsburgh because it offers me the opportunity to devote all of my time to research, field service, and advanced education dealing with these problems of medical care.

Since this is the last Annual Meeting I will address, I am sure you will permit me to look backwards just a bit.

I came to Beth Israel Hospital late in 1953. Like other comparable institutions, the Beth Israel Hospital faced the difficult problems of increasing costs and of adequate staffing to put newly constructed bed capacity into use. Though we have made some progress, we have not, nor has any other American Hospital, yet found the perfect or final solution. However, we did succeed in increasing the number of beds in service, from 296 to 342. The problem of increasing costs is still with us. This is not a new problem. Our Hospital Annual Report for 1943, states that the overall cost of care per patient per day was then $8.00. Ten years later, in 1953, the cost was $26.38, more than three times as much. Since then, the cost has continued to rise – but at a much slower rate. Now, six years later, it has risen by approximately two-thirds. This has happened all over the country. It is due to the increasing complexity of medical services needed as a result of medical progress, to the shortage of skilled and unskilled personnel, and to the improvement in their conditions of work and the general rise in wages. All signs indicate that both these processes will continue.

While there may be some who would like to see pay levels stop where they are, there are none, I am sure, who would like to see medical progress stop.

There are some aspects of this cost trend which are not discouraging. The first is that with the increasing prosperity and the growth of insurance, more Americans have been getting hospital care each year despite the increased cost. The other point is that the increasing costs in the recent past have not placed a larger burden upon the Associated Jewish Philanthropies. In 1953, the subvention from the AJP was $573,000. Our need for subvention this year may be less than that. Furthermore, this subvention which has in the past represented over 20% of the cost of operation of the Hospital, now represents less than 10%. At the same time, we have maintained a structure of charges which is not higher than that of comparable hospitals. This is in contrast to the decade of the 40's when mounting costs were accompanied by increased subventions from the AJP.

With the complexity of technical services needed by patients and the changes in our society, more and more people are involved in giving hospital care. Hospitals generally are therefore finding it increasingly difficult to provide the consistent, warm, personal attention patients want and need. The recruitment of all personnel, needed not only for skilled technical services, but for the personal services to patients, is becoming increasingly difficult. The complete solution of this problem is not in the hands of the individual institutions. It involves national trends and attitudes of people to their work.

During my experience at the Beth Israel Hospital, the volume of service to patients has increased greatly in almost all areas. We have increased and improved services to patients, and have developed an administrative structure to cope with this increasingly complex activity. Strengthening of staff with resultant improvement of service has been notable in such areas as the Radiology Service, the Clinical Laboratories, the Recovery Room, the Emergency Unit, the Record Room and the House Staff generally.

Special attention has been given to the reorganization of the services in the out-patient department. This was done to improve these services for needy patients and to provide a basis for reducing the number of patients admitted to the hospital simply for diagnostic services, which they could obtain on an ambulatory basis.

We are particularly proud of the Home Care Program which has just completed 5 years of service to patients. It is equivalent to a 50-bed ward scattered throughout the city over a 30-mile radius.

Our educational activities have continued to grow. This year, well over a thousand persons came to the Beth Israel Hospital full-time or part-time for instruction in the various allied health professions.

Our research staff continues to advance its scientific investigations. Basic knowledge is being sought about important diseases. New treatments are being developed. The large volume of financial support for these research activities from governmental agencies and medical foundations is a gratifying expression of confidence by these expert agencies.

Our responsibility to function in concert with other health and welfare programs of the community has been spelled out in greater detail in these years, through formal and informal effective, often continuous, relationships with many agencies.

I came to the Hospital three years after completion of the new facilities. It was evident then that the progress of medicine had already made some of these new facilities inadequate. The plans for new construction and for reconstruction, now in the hands of the architect, represent a minimum of additional facilities needed merely for the Hospital to maintain its present level of performance.

What are the dimensions of the community we serve? Who are the beneficiaries of the Beth Israel Hospital program? We serve the patients who are brought to this hospital by their private physicians. We serve these private physicians by making our services available to them in the conduct of their practice. We serve financially needy patients, regardless of creed or color. We serve the community through our close working relationships with other community agencies. Through our programs of education and research, we serve not only Boston, but our nation and other nations. Thousands of graduates of Harvard and Tufts medical schools have had an important part of their professional education at the Beth Israel Hospital. They remember our hospital with warmth and gratitude. In this way and through our research activities, we serve the whole world. Is this more than the Jewish Community should be doing? I think not. Is there more that needs to be done? – Quite clearly, yes.

The need for more health personnel is pressing. In spite of the wondrous progress of recent decades, medical research is every bit as urgent as it ever has been. And, all of this activity makes the Beth Israel a better hospital.

In order to build solidly for the future, we cannot be content with what has been achieved thus far. We must continue to develop creatively as a teaching and research hospital as well as a service institution. To surrender to obstacles in our path is to lose ground and effectiveness.

The leadership of this hospital, through its vision and vigor, can provide an essential element that is needed in democratic society to best solve our major health problems. Doctors can not do this job alone. To close the gap between scientific knowledge and its application the hospital's lay leadership and medical leadership must supplement each other.

This hospital has set out on a great and inspiring mission. Continued progress requires eternal vigilance, imagination and courage – for success is a journey and not a destination. The heart-warming achievements of the past only call forth greater efforts for the future. There is much to be done.

I am deeply appreciative of the opportunity I have had to be part of this venture. It has been an absorbing, challenging task. I hope I have helped just a little in moving it towards our goal. To those lay and professional colleagues who have clasped hands with me as we pressed forward, I am deeply grateful.

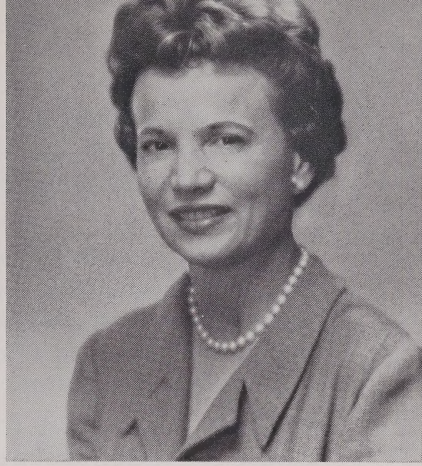
Report of the President

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY

Mrs. Norman L. Cahners

(Remarks made at the Beth Israel Hospital Annual Dinner Meeting, November 29, 1959)



I am especially happy that my first report to you is one of progress and achievement. As you know, the original and abiding purpose of the Auxiliary is to promote and advance the welfare of the Beth Israel Hospital. We seek to accomplish this purpose in three ways – by interpretation of the Hospital to the public, by Volunteer Services to the Hospital and its patients, and by fund-raising.

These are the triple foundations of our organization, and while these three categories are inter-related, there has been a considerable amount of activity in each of them during the past year.

We see the job of interpretation as one of communicating to our over 8,000 members and to the general public the important role that Beth Israel plays in their daily lives and in the life of the community. Through our publication, Highlights – as well as through newspaper and television publicity – we inform our audiences of the Hospital's many activities, thus creating an atmosphere of goodwill and recognition for what the Hospital is doing.

However, we all know that the most effective means of communication is person-to-person contact, and it is in this area that we really shine!

At our Board Meetings, Branch Meetings, Committee Meetings and Annual Luncheons – as well as in our drives for new annual memberships and life memberships – we are telling the Beth Israel story continuously and vividly.

But talking about the services our Hospital renders is one thing; actually performing them is quite another. It is in Volunteer Service that the true value of the Auxiliary is reflected. There is scarcely an area of the Hospital where their uniforms are not to be found. They work in the Outpatient Department; they make thousands of surgical dressings; they assist in the Admitting Office, help with Musical Therapy and Occupational Therapy, and they provide specially needed patient services at the request of the Hospital's Department Heads. Wherever they are needed, they are right in there helping out – not with just the glamorous jobs, but the dull and dreary ones as well.

I think you will be interested to learn that last year more than 50,000 hours of Volunteer Services were donated by the Auxiliary members. And while 50,000 hours in itself is impressive, even more impressive is the fact that the total reflects more hours by each individual volunteer than ever before in our history.

There is an extension of this Volunteer Service that is particularly close to the heart of the Auxiliary. It is our work with the Student Nurses. We try to impress upon them that the Hospital is not alone a superb training place for young people, but that its concern goes much deeper and takes into account their comfort and their personal welfare as well. Helping them to feel more at home, planning social events and providing theatre and symphony tickets are all aimed at bringing our young students closer to the Beth Israel family.

But it is the financial and scholarship aid which the Auxiliary has been able to provide that is most gratifying to us. Last year 12 girls were enrolled as Student Nurses because of scholarships which we had provided. Without this help, these girls could not have made Nursing their Career.

Today, when the Home Care Program of Beth Israel is regarded as a model by hospitals throughout the land, it is gratifying to recall that in 1953 the Auxiliary produced the money for the original studies which were made to determine the feasibility of extending our out-patient service into the home.

It is equally gratifying to know that since that time, the Auxiliary has given nearly $100,000 to carry on this important program.

As for fund-raising, the Auxiliary has, over the years, contributed substantial sums to the support of the Hospital. This year is no exception.

Almost 2,700 women attended our Annual Luncheon. This was not only the largest gathering of women of any organization in the city during the year, but, according to informed sources, was the largest meeting of any Hospital Auxiliary in the nation.

Our Life Membership Drive is already underway, and I am glad to be able to report that we are off to an excellent start. Our campaign for Annual Members is also well-organized, and we are planning an all-day telethon to be held on December 18.

Income from the Gift Shop, the Remembrance Fund and the B. I. Babies Alumni Association has also been maintained at a satisfactory level. And business at our Thrift Shop has been so good that we have had to expand. I am happy to announce that its doors will open tomorrow morning at new and larger quarters at 25 Harvard Street, Brookline. The additional space will make it possible not only to offer more merchandise, but will enable us to sell furniture as well. We invite you all to visit us and will welcome your continued support.

And now for our newest project . . . we take quiet pride in the fact that ever since 1930, when for the first time women underwrote a capital improvement to the Hospital, our financial support has been steady and constant. It will be no less so now when the Hospital faces another great challenge – to provide new and better buildings for Beth Israel's task of tomorrow.

With this in mind, it gives me special pleasure to announce the establishment of a new Fund-Raising Project, which will be directed to the general improvement of Beth Israel service to the most needy of our patients. This project will be called, "Friends of the Outpatient Building and Emergency Unit".

Membership in this program is to be $100, and the name of each donor will be inscribed on a bronze tablet commemorating her participation.

I could not conclude my report without paying my personal tribute to the women of the Auxiliary. Love is a woman's business – and love in action, whether it is service to home, to the community, or to the needy, meets a deep felt want in the heart of every woman. You can be proud of the women who have shown their devotion so magnificently through the Auxiliary.

But, if what businessmen say is true and "It's the Bottom Line that Counts", then we of the Auxiliary can be very proud that we are able at this time to present to you, Mr. Wyner – on behalf of the Beth Israel Hospital Women's Auxiliary – this check in the amount of $50,000.

Our Volunteers

The services of our Volunteers contribute immeasurably to the comfort and well-being of the patients at Beth Israel. Their friendly dedication adds to the warm and kindly atmosphere most essential to patient care. Without their active participation in so many areas of the Hospital, an extra burden would be placed on our staff and employees, as well as on the budget of our organization.

During the period of October 1, 1958 to September 30, 1959, approximately 521 volunteers gave 55,414 hours of service. The figures recorded below indicate the number of hours and the services provided by these loyal men and women. We are extremely proud of this record. To our hundreds of devoted volunteers, including the Women's Auxiliary, the Hospital expresses its gratitude and appreciation.

Contributions

(October 1, 1958 — September 30, 1959)

A great Hospital is always at the heart of the community . . . thus the steady progress and significant achievements of Beth Israel Hospital have been made possible.

Through a dynamic program, responsive to changing health needs, Beth Israel offers improved and extended services for patient care. By coordinating treatment, training, research and education, the Hospital helps to advance medical progress.

The generosity of our contributors is indispensable in helping to maintain its high standards in the face of rising costs. Recorded on this and subsequent pages are the names of contributors who gave $100 or more during the period covered by this report. We regret that space does not permit the listing of 895 contributors of smaller gifts totaling $7,115.00 received during the same period. Gifts of books, flowers, medical equipment, toys, etc. were also received from thoughtful members of the community.

To all our contributors, the Beth Israel Hospital expresses its grateful thanks and appreciation.
